The advent of video games in the nineteenth century which caught the craze of the kids and adolescents alike is well continuing in the twentieth century with the games and the devices on which they are played both getting more sophisticated and ubiquitous. The games have become so enticing that it is influencing the kids to the extent that they can take their lives also. But not all games are bad. Games are becoming more and more gripping on the psychology of the player and since newer avenues have accessed these video games have opened such as mobile phones and television screens, they are creating a much larger impact on the life of the players and on the society as a whole. boys spend more than two hours. Teenagers spend the maximum amount of time playing video games. However, teenage is also the crucial age of mental development and video games play a major role in shaping the mind of an individual. It has been observed that action games that involve a lot of violence often turn the children aggressive and short tempered.

Another major concern with video games is that they might brainwash the minds of youngsters who may ultimately harm themselves for the sake of game. For instance, the recent controversy regarding the infamous blue whale game reveals that many teenage children have succumbed to death while playing the game. The game involves certain challenges that the players have to fulfill in real life in order to move ahead in the game. The ultimate challenge in the game is however to commit suicide. Sadly, many kids have given up their lives after being brainwashed by this game. (19-10)

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR Status & Changing Roles of Women in Indian Society (33)

It is a matter for families, not family courts, to deal with. A conflict-free and friction-free marriage is indeed utopian. It is said that marriages are made in heaven. But so is thunder and lightning. Many couples seek divorce on flippant grounds. The number of broken families has increased after became easy. Society has treated divorce as taboo for long. There are a thousand reasons for a marriage to break. But there is one more reason for a compromise. Marriages survive on account of moral fear. Change in attitudes towards divorce is a part of the process of secularization in Indian society. Secularization refers to the declining influence of religion. Marriage in traditional Hindu society was considered as a sacred bond. Hinduism insisted that the bond of marriage is not only for this life, but for many lives to come. But gradually Hindus have started taking less rigid view in this regard due to their secular beliefs and values. Divorce is not a happy option for couples. In order to have a happy marriage, one needs to prepare in advance, know what a marriage means; and spend quality time with the spouse. The causes of divorce are not uniform between various social groups. Divorce is not spread evenly across the population. The changes which have influenced the rate of marital breakdown have not affected all the members of our society in the same way. The changes in society are filtered through the class system. As a result there are differences in rate of marital breakdown in different social groups. Divorce rate varies in India with the social class as well as occupational status. If one does not have time for the family, it is better not to marry. Today, the sad point is that most children of divorced parents lead a volleyball existence, they are thrown from one side to the other without a safety net for their emotions. The question is how to bring an end to this practice? Will divorces continue for ever? If so, a day will come when our society as we see it today will cease to exist. and the word "Divorce" is then the only safety valve for the tensions of married life.

Vinod Chandrashekhar Dixit (AHMEDABAD)

younger generation to be fully acquainted with the roots of Indian culture, ethos and history. He was addressing the gathering after releasing a documentary film 'Kumbh' based on Kumbh Mela produced by India Inspires Foundation in association with the Indus University, here today.

The Vice President said that knowledge, understanding and history about the country to most people were known through the perspective of foreign writers. He further said that Kumbh Mela illustrates that India is the spiritual capital of the world and it is an event where great spiritual integration of people takes place. Unfortunately, over the past many years the projection of Kumbh Mela was not positive and accurate, he pointed. There was a great need for comprehensive information from an authentic Indian viewpoint about the origin, history, significance of the Kumbh Mela, he added.

Describing Kumbh Mela as a glowing symbol of India's rich spiritual heritage, the Vice President said that it is the world's biggest gathering of pilgrims at any one event. He further said that millions from across India and abroad gather to purify themselves of their past sins and seek salvation. It is believed that a dip in the holy waters cleanses the mind and body of the past sins and paves the way for Moksha, he added.

The Vice President said that culture and religion were not the same. "When we talk of culture, we are not talking of religion. Culture is a way of living while religion is a way of worship", he added.

The Vice President complimented the makers of the Kumbh Mela documentary, and said there was a need to go back to Indian roots, culture, heritage and values for harmonious living of the people. He further said that the film showcases the origin of Kumbh Mela and how it became a torch-bearer of Sanatana Dharma. It seeks to provide an understanding of the tradition of saints and sages of India, among others, he added.
